The California State Legislature adjourned at midnight for the year on August 31 st. CCSO is busy preparing upcoming legislation. This is the time for supervisors to set up meetings with their district representatives and introduce yourself and CCSO supervisory issues to them. If you need assistance scheduling a meeting, please contact our office.

Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger says he wants to shine a light into the dark corners of the state's 32 prisons so that the public can find out what goes on behind bars. His commitment to that goal will be tested this month when he decides whether to sign legislation that would once again allow news reporters face-to-face interviews with prisoners behind bars. Schwarzenegger, whose wife, Maria Shriver, is a veteran TV reporter, hasn't taken a position on the measure, SB 1164, by Senator Gloria Romero.

Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger vetoed a bill Tuesday that sought to help judges decide, which juvenile crimes were serious enough to merit prosecution in adult court. In a statement, Schwarzenegger said the bill would "seriously compromise public safety" by preventing some of California 's most dangerous juvenile offenders from being tried as adults. He also suggested that the measure would erode a ballot initiative, approved by voters in 2000 that sought to toughen penalties for young criminals.
